CRASH ON THE RAIL.

Twelve Persons Injured in a Collision in Brooklyn.

A Long Island R.R. Engine Runs Into a Rapid Transit Train.

Two Care Thrown from the Track and Badly Broken Up-Passengers Imprisoued in the Wreck-The Engineers of Both Trains Hurt-How the Crash Occurred-Travel Delayed Four Hours.

A collision occurred on the Long Island Railroad, near the Ralph avenue station, on Atlantic avenue, just after 7 o'clock this

So far as is known twelve persons were injured. No one was killed.

That such is the case is a miracle, as both trains were pretty well filled at the time. The accident was due to the slippery condition of the rails.

Engine No. 5, of the rapid transit branch of the system, which runs from the Flatbush avenue station to East New York, had just left the Ralph avenue station, with three cars on its way down.

It was being closely followed by engine No. 73, with eight cars, which was coming in from Long Island.

As a rule the Long Island trains do not stop after leaving East New York until they reach the Flatbush avenue station, which is the Brooklyn terminus of the road. The rapid transit trains stop at all the interme diate stations between these two points.

After the train drawn by engine No. 5 had pulled away from the station Engine 73 increased its speed, having slowed up so as not to run the other train down when it stopped at the station. The track at this point is a very heavy down grade.

Both trains had gone but a short distance when the Long Island train began to gain much speed. In a few minutes she was on top of the other.

With a crash the ponderous locomotive dashed into the rear car of the rapid transit train, which in turn smashed into the car ahead of it. The shock threw both carsfrom the track, badly wrecking them.

A number of people rushed to the assistance of the imprisoned passengers.

In a few minutes George Carney, the fireman of Engine No. 5, was helped out from his caboose. He was injured about the head. Edward Kelly, of 12 Columbia place, had his left hip injured. William S. Woods, of Farmingdale, L. I.

had his face injured. William Grath, of the Twelfth Police Precinct, received injuries to head and shoulder. They were all taken to their homes. Several other passengers were slightly injured, but they left for their homes before their names could be ascertained. Travel was delayed for almost four hours.

[SPECIAL TO THE WORLD.] DOVER, N. H., Dec. 27 .- Dr. W. W. Webber. a painter by trade, who has also had considerable experience as a healing physician. made it public this forenoon that the claim of his father, William Webber, as one of the heirs to a plot of land of sixty-six acres, located in New York City south of Canal street,

Said plot of land is now studded with massive blocks of buildings. It was bought in 1636 by Wilfred Webber, of Holland, who settled on Manhattan Island.

It is known that in 1674 Mr. Webber leased the land referred to, to a kinsman. Wilfred Webber, jr., for 200 years. Dr. Webber's father is the seventh generation of Webber's father is the seventh generation of Webber, sr., who originally owned the land. On the expiration of the lease in 1874 the land naturally reverted to the descendants of the original Wilfred Webber. For a few years past William Webber and other descendants have been busily engaged in proving that they were direct descendants of the first owner.

Now that it is proved there will be a meet-g of heirs in New York City, Jan. 20, to complete arrangements for getting possession of this property, valued at $20,000,000.

DEMPSEY AND M'CAFFREY TO FIGHT.

To Spar Ten Rounds in Public on Jan. 31-Articles of Agreement.

Jack Dempsey and Dominick McCaffrey met again at the Coleman House this morning and drew up an agreement to box ten rounds in public on Jan. 31.

Dempsey was anxious to have a finish fight, and thought an acceptance of Billy light, and thought an acceptance of Billy Edwards's offer of $2,000 backing for each of them, with a certainty of $1,000 to the winner, ought to be accepted, said Jack.

"Why not snap up the money? We can bet as much more as we like on the outside." Dominick said he could get $5,000 backing and Denglacy was sure he could get even more than that. McCaffrey seemed to think there was more in a public boxing contest and the following are the articles of agreement:

Articles of agreement entered into this 27th day of December, iss7, between Dominick McCaffrey, of Philauelphia, and John Dempsey, of Williamsburg, to box ten rounds in public according to the Marquis of Queensberry rules, on the Sist day of January, iss8, at a piace and hour agreed upon. In consideration of this agreement said Dominick McCaffrey is to pay into the hands of said John Dempsey on the day prior to this contest the sum of one thousand dollars ($1,000). In event of the net gate receipts of said contest exceeding the sum of $2,000, the said Dominick McCaffrey agrees to pay to the said John Dempsey a sum equal to 40 per cent. of the amount taken in excess of the said $2,000.

Said Dominick McCaffrey further agrees to allow said John Dempsey the sum of one hundred and fitty dollars ($150) for training expenses for said contest.

CONTEST.

It is further agreed between said McCaffrey and said Dempsey that in case of police or other interference with the course of said contest, said Dempsey shall abandon all claim upon said Dountick McCaffrey excepting for the sum of $150, already agreed upon for training expenses of said Dempsey.

DOMINICK MCCAPPREY.

LEANDER RICHARDSON, Witness.

The place agreed upon is kept secret for the present, and the proposed fight is prac-tically a "finish" contest, as both men, under the Queensberry rules agreed upon, will be pushed to their utmost to last through.

McCaffrey is the heavier of the two, but Dempsey's record of battles won has never been broken, and there is much interest in sporting circles over the coming event. Mc-Laffrey goes at once to Philadelphia to train. and Dempsey repairs to Rockaway for the BURGLARS IN THE RED STAR OFFICE. Bold Attempt to Break Open a Steamship Company's Safe.

Policeman John J. Curran, while on post in Broadway about 8.45 o'clock Christmas morning, noticed that the light had been put out in the office of the Red Star Line Steamship Company, Broadway and Tin Pot alley. He started to ring the janitor's bell at the entrance on Broadway when two men darted out of the office.

The policeman gave chase and captured John Fisher, a nineteen-year-old German, who speaks no English, at the corner of Car-lisle and Greenwich streets. The prisoner said that he was lodging at the Phœnix House in the Borrery.

in the Bowery.

The policeman then returned to the build-

The policeman then returned to the building to see if any more burglars were at work. He discovered that all the desks in the office had been broken open and that the drawers were lying on the floor.

The safe which stood in the corner looked as though an effort had been made to open it with a jimmy, but the burglars evidently gave up the attempt.

When they found that their tool, which consisted of an iron bar, cut on the end to resemble a jimmy, was not of sufficient strength to open the safe, the burglars turned their attention to the desks.

On the person of Fisher was found four pocketbooks, two bunches of keys, a lot of lead pencils and penholders, sixty Jersey City ferry tickets, seven baggage keys with

In one of Fisher's pockets was found a package of cayenne pepper. He said that he had been only five months in the country, and that his companion was Gus Miller, a short, stout, dark-complexioned young man, with a small black mustache. Miller escaped. There were three men at work when the policeman approached. The outside sentinel disappeared on sight of the policeman.

"DO-DO" NOT TO BE ENJOINED.

The Dog-Faced Boy Obliged to Endure th Competition of a Rival. The application of Nathan Morris, manage of "Jo-Jo." the dog-faced boy, for an injunction restraining Wicks & Simkins, Bowery museum proprietors from exhibiting "Do-Do," has been denied by Judge Lawrence. He holds that no case for an injunction is made out as there is not the slightest resem-blance between "Jo-Jo" and "Do-Do."

A Dakota Dilzzard Coming

The snowstorm that visited this section yesterday was local, and has disappeared no one knows whither. There is, however, a big storm fooling around in Dakota and the upper lake region, and it may reach this way in two or three days.
The storm is accompanied by a cold wave that is freezing things solid in the Northwest. The coldest spot this morning was Fort Assimibothe, in Montana, where the mercury stood at 24 degrees below zero. In this city the temperature was 28 degrees above.

Followed by an Imaginary Crowd. Policeman Charles H. Davis brought to Smith, a well-dressed man who closely resembled Samuel J. Tilden. The officer said Mr. Smith went to the station-house in Mulberry street at 6 o'click this morning aed told the Sergeant in the desk that a gang of men was following him about, and that he wanted police projection. Justice O'Reilly committed him to the care of the City Physicians for examination as to mental condition. Tombs Folice Court this morning William

The artistic arrangement of the decorations was universally admired and praised.

The ceiling was ornamented with long lines of red, white and blue streamers radiating from two central points and looped up at the sides of the room.

The two rows of pillars extending down both sides of the hall were almost hidden from view behind draperies of gayly colored banners and flags of different nations, while the walls and gallery were similarly decorated with brilliant colored hangings.

A Fire Alarm's Little Joke

Several fire-engines awang around at full speed and stopped with a jerk in front of Thurber, Whyland & Co.'s stores, on Reade, Duane and West Broadway, at noon to-day and startled the firm Broadway, at noon to-day and startled the firm and clerks alike.

Brawny firemen rushed into the building and asked where the fire was. Every one gasped and asked the firemen if the building was burning. The firemen said that they should know, for they had sent in an alarm. This was, denied, and all turned to to find the fire. Neither smoke, spark nor even escaping steam could be found.

The firemen left in disgust, and the clerks resumed work with tremblingly held pens. The cause of all this was that the automatic fire alarm in the fifth story of the Duane street building had been a little too automatic, and sent in a false alarm.

Robbed in a Novel Manner. "He threw his arms around my neck and said 'Hallon, pop, and at the same time he stole my "Hallos, pop,' and at the same time he stole my gold watch," said Joseph Doriety, a stevedore for the Clyde Steamship Company who lives at 16 Forsyth street, in the Tomba Police Court this morning, pointing to John Mechan, of 230 Monroe street, Policeman J. J. O'Bries, of the Elizabeth street station, said that he found Mechan and the complainant wrestling, as he thought, in the Bowery, near Hester street, at 8 o'clock last night, when he saw Mechan suddenly dart away. At the same time Doriety shouted "Stop thief," whereupon the policeman gave chase and caught Mechan just as he dropped the watch at his feet. Mechan was held in $1,000 ball for trial.

Young McNeally Has Not Returned the Stolen Securities to the Bank.

[SPECIAL TO THE WORLD.] rumors that the securities stolen by Mc-Neally have been returned to the bank are without foundation.

It is now stated on good authority that all without foundation.

It is now stated on good authority that all the securities and Government bonds taken by the defaulter are hidden in Cairo, Egypt.

The first knowledge of McNeally's whereabouts was obtained last month, when his brother received a letter from Egypt in Frank's handwriting.

The writer stated that his sole desire was to have the bank regain possession of she missing securities. He was suffering both mentally and physically and had he not been the only one who knew where the bonds were, he would have put an end to his sufferings by suicide.

While at Cairo he fell into the hands of sharpers and was fleeced of all the ready money he had.

He fell sick with Nile fever, and had to be taken to sea to save his life. Had it not been for the kindness of the English officers he would never have reached Liverpool, for when he left Cairo he was so sick with fever that at times he was unconscious. The stolen securities he left hidden in Cairo simply because he was not physically in a condition to guard their safety had they been in hispossession. He partially recovered his health before he arrived at Liverpool, and was able to make the voyage across the Atlantic unattended. When he arrived at the latter port he was almost penniless. The small sum of money found on his person when he was arrested at Halifax was given him by his brother Harry, when the latter met him on the arrival of the steamer from Liverpool. The defaulter has evinced but little excitement since his arrest at Halifax, and that doubtless led the reporters to suspect that he had come there in boldness to demand and receive from the victimized bank a round sum for the return of the stolen bonds. But such was not his object, all reports to the contrary notwithstanding. He came to Halifax in penitence, ready and anxious to put the bank in a way to recover all its securities.

GEORGE COFFIN'S WAYS. Characteristics of the Faithful Old Janito

of Tammany Hall. Sincere sorrow was manifested by Paddy the engineer of Tammany Hall, this morning as he led a World reporter to the little room where the remains of John T. Coffin, the veteran janitor, were lying in state.

"Poor George," continued Paddy, who was one of the old Monitor's crew, "won't handle these keys any more. He and I have been here these many, many years and I shall miss him.

"Let me see. He began complaining two years ago, and he was never the same man in health after that. He suffered a great deal, and the doctor told him he had Bright's disease and that it would fetch him.

"Seems to me I can see him now sitting at that window all by himself, smoking and looking out. His last work was to direct the envelopes notifying the members of the General Committee to attend the December meeting.

"Come here, Tom. Here is his favorite cat. Do you know," to the reporter, "that Tom appears to know that his master is dead. We could not get him out of that room last night, so we left the door open and kept night, so we lef watch in here. watch in here.

"Do you remember the time the Young Democrats, led by Jimmy O'Brien, Tom Creamer and others, who were rebelling againstMr. Tweed, tried to get possession of the Wigwam? That was a great night. The doors were doubly barred, there was a crowd of police outside, and George had command of an army of men unside. George stood on guard all night, and he would have died right at that door.

All the big guns knew George. I tell you when he was angry—on election nights when the returns came in against Tammany Hall. But when the returns were in tavor of the old organization George would be as happy as a king."

Before the last strains of the music had died away the cortége reached the church, the coffin was lifted out and carried up the aisle. Dr. Reese began the services by the reading of the sentences beginning: "I am the resurrection and the life." The coffin was placed upon the bier, which was covered with palms and evergreens, and the bearers, mourners and those that followed took their places.

The President and Cabinet occupied the middle aisle at the left, together with the Governor and State officers, the judiciary and prominent out-of-town mourners. Upon Altogether it was the most distinguished gathering of men Albany has ever seen at a funeral of one of her sons.

After an impressive funeral sermon by Rev. Dr. Reese, the coffin was tenderly lifted and borne back to the hearse, which proceeded slowly up the street towards the city of the dead, followed by the long procession of mourners in sleighs. While the procession was moving the bell in the tower of the City Hall tolled, adding to the solemnity of the occasion.

READING MEN HAPPY.

The Great Strike Declared Off This Morning.

Employees Report for Duty and Trains Begin to Move.

Conference Between a Committee of the Convention and Reading's General Saperintendent-The Men Recognized as Company Employees and Not as Knights of Labor-Reated Discussion Among the Men-Cool Heads Finally Prevail.

PHILADRIPHIA, Dec. 27.—The employees of the Reading Railroad Company have been ordered back to work and the company's business will be running as usual this afternoon. The strike was declared off about 1 o'clock this morning, after a meeting of the Reading Employees' Convention Committee and the officials of the Reading company. The General Superintendent has sent out this message : The strike is settled and men will return to work There were several conferences yesterday between the committee of employees and General Superintendent Sweigard. The meetings took place by invitation of the company and at their offices in South Fourth

All the disputes were earnestly and harmoniously discussed and resulted in a general good feeling. The last conference was between John Lee and John Kelley and Mr. Sweigard. Every point but the recognition of the men as Knights of Labor had been agreed upon. This subject was mentioned by Mr. Lee and Mr. Sweigard replied : " Of course the men must come to me as Reading employees. 1 will not treat with them as Knights of cussion followed, but finally the cooler heads mastered the situation and the men were ordered back to work.

Everything is quiet at Portchester and in this city. The men began to report for work as early as 5 o'clock and trains will soon be running as usual.

It is understood that the crews over which the trouble originated, five in number, are not to resume work, but that they are to be provided for by the Knights of Labor.

At 11 o'clock General Manager Medical said every department of the road was running.

It is asserted that the understanding between General-Supt, Sweigard and the committee of employees was if the men could lift the strike the company would agree to arbitrate.

The Reading officials say the company agreed to nothing whatever, but simply told the committee that the men must go to work as usual this morning or they would be discharged.

protested that no inconvenience was being felt by the company and that it was only a triffing matter concerning the discharge of five crews, but when news came of the adjustment of the difficulty they were willing to confess a feeling of great relief that serious trouble had been averted.

Mr. Henry W. Maxwell, the partner of President Austin Corbin, was in a very good humor as he turned this telegram over to a WonLip reporter this morning.

President Austin Corbin, was in a very good humor as he turned this telegram over to a Woald reporter this morning:

The strike is off and future arbitration agreed to. Men are coming in by the hundred, and all trains scheduled up to 10 o'clock have been provided with crews and are already moving. By this evening everything will be running smoothly.

No visible dissatisfaction on the part of the men. Am exceedingly gratified at the loyalty of the employees to the company.

Quite a crowd of men from Elizabethport and Jersey City came over to day and loitered around the Coal Exchange, waiting for scraps of news. They could not believe that the strike was off, and smiled derisively when told the purport of Mr. Corbin's telegram.

They insisted that the strike instead of coming to an end had extended to the Schuylkill miners and the Pennsylvania freight handlers and that the men would not yield till the difficulty over the Taylor Brothers' freight at Port Richmond was settled in favor of the Knights.

On the Coal Exchange the news was received philosophically. Secretary Foster said there had not been time since the ordering of the strike on Saturday for speculators to get up a scare about a coal famine.

Prices would have risen to-day, he said.

to get up a scare about a coal famine.

Prices would have risen to-day, he said, had the fears of a general extension of the strike been verified, but the prospect now was in favor of a reduction. Held and Robbed of His Watch. Thomas Dukane, twenty-one years old, of and West Sixty-first street, was held in $1,000 bail by Justice Murray in the Yorkville Police Court than morning on a charge of stealing a watch from John Brennan, of 215 West Sixty-drist street, last night. Brennan was opening the door of his house when two young men stole up behind him, and one of them stole his watch and ran off, while the other, Dukane, held him to prevent him following the third. This tallef escaped, but Brennan grasped Dukane and gave him into the custody of a policeman.
